The Big Buddha of Hong Kong: an accidental Buddhist theme park

Abstract

The Tian Tan Buddha is the core of a tourism site on Lantau Island, Hong Kong, around which a cable car ride, the Po-Lin monastery and its museum, and the village of Ngong Ping have come to comprise an eclectic set of tourism nuclei that 'accidentally' became the 'Buddhist theme park' of Hong Kong due to the spatial juxtaposition in an isolated site of these disconnected and even dissonant components built at different times by different jurisdictions. The first objective of this article is to explore the developmental process of a religious site into a theme park of sort through a lengthy process filled with contestation and manipulations. The history-dependent and erratic nature of this process validates the notion of 'accidental' theme park used here. It is shown that over time, the Big Buddha went from being a Buddhism-themed leisure site to being generally perceived and promoted as essentially a theme park through a process of partial Disneyization. The second objective is to examine how the 'theme park' is perceived by its visitors, more precisely how they see it after their visit and what first-time visitors expect from it beforehand. The first enquiry, performed through the analysis of TripAdvisor reviews, indicates that ex-post, the visitors typically describe having experienced a visit to a theme park. The second enquiry, performed by interviewing first-time visitors about to access the site, suggests that while many first-time visitors expect to visit a theme park as well, others, mainly Western tourists, are expecting a more cultural experience. The findings of the two inquiries are compared to each other and to the image of the site promoted by the local tourism authorities. The subdued political message of the Big Buddha and the degree to which it is discerned by visitors are also discussed.

Environmental challenges and solutions ; volume 2.

Contents Part 1: Foundations. Chapter 1: Sustainable Tourism in an Emerging World of Complexity and Turbulence -- Chapter 2: The Changing Meanings of Sustainable Tourism -- Chapter 3: Tourism, Development, and Sustainability -- Part 2: Frameworks -- Chapter 4: Frameworks for Tourism as a Development Strategy -- Chapter 5: Strategic Community Participation in Sustainable Tourism -- Chapter 6: Framework for Understanding Sustainability in the Context of Tourism Operators -- Chapter 7: Frameworks for Managing Tourism in Protected Areas -- Part 3: Case Studies -- Chapter 8: When dem come: Political Ecology of Sustainable Tourism in Cockpit County, Jamaica -- Chapter 9: Understanding the Himalayan Townscape of Shimla through Resident and Tourist Perception -- Chapter 10: Community-based Tourism and Development in the Periphery/ Semi-periphery Interface: A Case Study from Viet Nam -- Chapter 11: The Concept of Environmental Supply in National Parks -- Chapter 12: Sustainable Tourism in Brazil: Faxinal and Superagui Case Studies -- Chapter 13: Tourism Development as Building Social Capital -- Part 4: Conclusion -- Chapter 14: The Way Forward.

Summary This book examines the need for a new way of describing sustainable tourism and also looks at the frameworks needed to rethink how to apply this to communities, private operators and protected area managers. It makes it clear that tourism is just one of many human activities that affects host communities. The work includes informative and provocative case studies with realistic applications. References included in the book will help graduate students formulate new hypotheses and suggest literature for them. Tools and techniques useful to tourism practitioners suggest innovative approaches to marketing, management and community development.

Library Fines and Fees

Overdue materials will be subject to late fines.

The Library offers an alerts to who have provided a valid e-mail address on their patron record. These alerts are sent by e-mail 3 days before an item approaches its due date for the original checkout.

Failure to receive a courtesy alert does not resolve the borrower from any overdue fines that may accumulate. Therefore, it is important that patrons take note of an item's due date on the receipt issued at the point of checkout, or when the item is renewed online .

Borrowing privileges are suspended for users who have been sent a second overdue notice for any currently checked out item. Library will send 5 overdue notice within 5 weeks after an item becomes overdue.

Overdue book will be fined for 2 dollars Per day (up to 250)

To run a basic search:

1. Enter your search terms in the search box.
2. As you type, searches matching your terms appear below the search box. If you see your term in the list, you can click on a search term to go directly to the result list.
3. Select any desired limiters from below the search box and click the Magnifying Glass to run your search.

The screenshot displays the EBSCO Discovery Service interface. On the left, the logo for EBSCO Discovery Service is visible, along with a navigation menu under 'My dashboard' including 'Overview', 'Projects', 'Saved', 'Searches', 'Viewed', and 'Holds & checkouts'. The main content area features the heading 'Search articles, books, journals & more'. A search box contains the text 'Information technology' and includes a clear icon (X) and a search icon (magnifying glass). Below the search box, a row of filter buttons is shown: 'Full Text', 'Peer Reviewed', 'Available in Library Collection', and 'All time' with a dropdown arrow. A red box highlights the search box and the filter buttons. A red arrow points to the search icon in the search box. The text 'Advanced search' is located to the right of the filter buttons. The 'MyEBSCO' logo is in the top right corner.

1. From the Results List, you can apply additional filters by clicking the All filters button below the search box.
2. View article details by clicking an article title or the View details link.
3. When Full Text is available, select a reading option (Publisher Site, Online Full Text, PDF) from the Access options drop-down menu.

The screenshot shows the EBSCO Discovery Service interface. At the top, the search box contains 'information technology'. Below the search box, there are filter buttons: 'All filters (1)', 'Full Text', 'Peer Reviewed', 'All time', and 'Source type'. A red arrow points from the 'Full Text' button to the first search result. The first result is a 'RESEARCH STARTER' titled 'Information Technology.' with a description and a 'Read more' link. Below this, there is a peer-reviewed academic journal article titled 'The Impact of Social Comparison on Turnover Among Information Technology Professionals.' with a 'View details' link. A red arrow points from the 'View details' link to the 'Access options' drop-down menu. The 'Access options' menu is open, showing 'Online full text' and 'PDF' as available options. A second red arrow points from the 'Online full text' option to the 'Access options' menu. A third red arrow points from the 'Access options' menu to the 'View details' link. The numbers 1, 2, and 3 are overlaid on the image to indicate the steps described in the list above.

Under Filters, apply any desired limiters to your search. For example, you may want to limit results to items with full text available online and published within a custom date range you select.

To add a Custom date range, select Custom range and click the fields to select start and end dates from the date picker. Other available Filters may include Language, etc.

Note: Any limiters that were selected on the Basic Search screen before accessing Advanced search are applied to searches conducted with Advanced Search.

Applying Filters After a Search

After running your initial search, you can apply filters to further refine your results based on several criteria. On the Results List page, the All filters button indicates with a blue dot if filters have been applied to your search. Click the All filters button to add or remove filters.

The screenshot displays a search interface with the following elements:

- Search bar: "information technology AND software engineering" with a search icon and a clear icon.
- Filters: A row of filter buttons below the search bar. The "All filters (6)" button is circled in red, indicating that filters have been applied. Other visible filters include "Full Text", "Academic (Peer-Reviewed) Journals", "Past 5 years", and "Academic Jou...".
- Advanced search: A link labeled "Advanced search" is located to the right of the filter buttons.
- MyEBSCO: The MyEBSCO logo is in the top right corner.

After clicking the All filters button, the Filters panel is displayed on the right side of the screen and shows the Search Mode used, Active filters, and Expanders selected.

- Use the arrows to expand facets and display the available filters for each one. Click the arrow again to collapse it.
- A locked icon indicates that filters are "sticky" and remain applied for your updated searches until you manually clear them.
- Available facets may include :

Abstract

Enterprise architecture is a growing trend that aims to help deal with the complexity of socio-technical systems such as human organizations, as well as their information technology and systems areas. Nevertheless, the contribution of enterprise architecture to the field of software engineering remains unclear. The purpose of this systematic literature review is to see how enterprise architecture is used in software development and maintenance practice. To this end, we first carried out a search in the SCOPUS database and then organized the papers according to the Software Engineering Body of
